Man confesses to child molesting

By Brenda Bunting
Editor

A man police described as a "Pied Piper" who enticed children by playing a portable keyboard piano has been arrested and charged with sexual battery on a child under the age of 12.

He has also been charged with lewd and lascivious acts in the presence of, or upon, a child under the age of 16.

A mother called the Belle Glade Police Department May 22 and said her 6-year-old child had been molested by a man carrying a keyboard piano. The man allegedly used the child's interest in the keyboard to get the child alone and then offered money for sexual favors.

On Wednesday, May 31, the mother called the police department and said the man was again in the area of 584 West Ave. A, Belle Glade.

Det. Frank Agolia responded to the call and saw Tywaun Jackson, 20, of 159 Tyson Court, Pahokee playing the keyboard for several juveniles who were gathered around him.

Jackson was taken to the Belle Glade Police Station for questioning and he confessed to molesting the young girl and also confessed to molesting other children.

He was also wanted by the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office for allegedly molesting a 5-year-old girl in April.

Jackson was arrested and is being held in the Palm Beach County Jail without bond while awaiting trial.

Elderly Pahokee man killed in accident

Alcohol reportedly not to blame for accident that claims life

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter

A two-car accident in Pahokee Sunday afternoon claimed the life of a 79-year-old local man and injured three others.

Florida Highway Patrol reports indicate John Wesley Wilson, 699 Frazier Ct., was traveling westbound on State Road 729 and failed to stop at the intersection of State Road 15 and S.R. 729.

In doing so, troopers said Wilson ran a stop sign and made a wide right-hand turn onto S.R. 15 traveling into the southbound lane.

Wilson's front end of his 1988 four-door

Oldsmobile collided with another Pahokee resident's 1988 Ford Ranger. John London Jr.'s automobile, was traveling southbound on S.R. 15.

Two of the passengers in Wilson's car, Paul Ertas, Jr. of 346 Salvatore Ct., and Gaudima Jean of 161 S. Lake Ave., were taken to Everglades Regional Medical Center, Pahokee.

Mr. London was also taken to the hospital where he was treated by hospital personnel.

Reports indicate Wilson's automobile received an estimated $4,500 damage, and Mr. London's vehicle received an estimated $5,000 damage.

Reports also conclude alcohol was not related to the accident, and seat belts were not in use at the time of the crash.

Area activist dies in automobile accident

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter

Many people knew her as the founder of Blacks On The Serious Side (BOSS), an organization which represents the poor residents and communities in the Glades area. Now, Doris Covington will be remembered as the person who began a legacy that will someday make a difference.

Mrs. Covington, 58, and her friend Dorothy Rawls Rembert, 74, were killed Monday in an automobile accident.

According to Florida Highway Patrol reports, Mrs. Rembert and Mrs. Covington were traveling westbound on State Road 80 in the inside lane. When Mrs. Rembert noticed she was approaching an earlier accident, she slowed her 1984 Ford Station Wagon. Richard Torrence, 26, of Lake Worth failed to slow down and swerved into Mrs. Rembert's lane.

Mr. Torrence stuck Mrs. Rembert's car. Mrs. Rembert's car crossed the median and two east bound lanes before plunging into a canal.

Should you be concerned about what QO Chemicals is injecting underground?

Officials say effluent is 98.5 percent water

By Brenda Bunting
Editor

Officials with QO Chemicals made a presentation to residents last week hoping to lay to rest their concerns about the company's deep well injection of Class I material from their plant.

The plant, located next to Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative east of Belle Glade, has been an employer in the community for 30 years. During that time, they have used a sugarcane by product from the mill, called bagasse, to produce a building-block chemical called furfural.

Furfural and its derivatives are used in the production of a wide variety of products such as plastics and nylon for clothing, industrial and sport wheels and belts, medical tubing, pharmaceuticals, fragrances and flavoring.

Recently, members of BOSS, (Blacks On The Serious Side) have questioned whether the effluent from the plant is being adequately contained in underground injection wells and the makeup of the material.

Police arrest suspect with car phone taken in auto burglary

By Brenda Bunting

A suspicious person complaint May 31 led to the arrest of a Belle Glade man on charges of burglary and grand theft.

On Wednesday, May 31, at approximately 11:17 p.m., Patrolman Ruben Prince of the Belle Glade Police Department responded to a tip about a suspicious person at the corner of N.E. First Street and N.E. Avenue J in Belle Glade.

Shortly after he got to the location he saw a man, later identified as Gregory Lynn Monroe, 36, of Belle Glade, carrying a cellular telephone.

Pt. Prince investigated and found that a vehicle belonging to Gary and Rene Jo. Crews at 1004 N.E. Second Street had been burglarized Troopers said Mr. Torrence's passenger, Anthony Basil, 27, of West Palm Beach, was injured in the accident, however, he was taken to Glades General Hospital where he was treated and released.

Mrs. Covington was a member of another Glades area community organization before BOSS began in 1987. After BOSS began, she was a member of the finance and fundraising committee. According to numerous residents, Mrs. Covington could be seen manning voter registrations booths in the area, and she was also known for her cooking during the organization's fundraising events. According to BOSS Executive Director Cynthia Laramore, "She (Mrs. Covington) had a tough appearance but it was just because she was soft on the inside."

At newspaper press time, funeral arrangements for Mrs. Covington were incomplete. Arrangements have been entrusted to Miller Mortuary, Belle Glade.

Cynthia Laramore, executive director of BOSS, said her organization has expressed their concerns to officials with the Federal Department of Environmental Protection, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Palm Beach County Health Unit.

The result was a three-hour meeting with FDEP, EPA, PBCHU and QO Chemicals June 1 at the Belle Glade Civic Center.

"I've done a lot of studying on this and I'm still not satisfied. They didn't explain the problem and they didn't give us reasonable assurance of safety," said Ms. Laramore.

QO Chemical Plant Manager Doug Royster said the company's effluent composition is 98.5 percent water, 0.9 percent vinegar, 0.4 percent sugar and some traces of furfural and other organics.

During the five to six months the plant operates, they inject approximately 250 million gallons of effluent at a depth of 3,000 feet.

and that a cellular telephone was stolen during the burglary.

Mr. Crews was notified his vehicle had been broken into and he was asked if the cellular telephone found in Monroe's possession was his.

He was able to identify the phone and Monroe was charged with burglary of a conveyance and grand theft.

After processing at the Belle Glade Police station, Monroe was taken to the Palm Beach County Jail in Belle Glade where he is being held without bond awaiting trial.

Lt. Jack Fulenwider with the Belle Glade Police Department said Monroe has an extensive history of retail theft and has been arrested before on charges of auto burglary and grand theft.

Health FIRST

Paula Swaford, R.N.

Where have all the healthy men gone?

Have any of you women out there noticed that there doesn't seem to be as many men around as there used to be? (Of course, those of us who are single, do). For every 100 women who die between the ages of 45 and 64, 170 men die. If men are so strong, why do most go sooner than the "weaker" sex? As a matter of record, most men take better care of their cars, than they do themselves. They have to change that oil every 3,000 miles, check the belts, rotate the tires, etc. But you can't persuade most of them to ever talk to a doctor about their own bodies. According to the American Cancer Society and others, these are the latest recommendations of when men need to do what for routine body maintenance:

Starting at age 20, blood pressure checked at least every two years. A comprehensive eye exam every two to four years. Exams for cancers of the lymph nodes, mouth, skin, testicles, and thyroid every three years. Total and HDL ("good") cholesterol measured at least every five years. A tetanus-diphtheria booster every 10 years.

During your 40's, all of the above, plus the cancer exams every year. A yearly digital rectal exam (for prostate and rectal cancer).

Starting at age 50, all of the above, plus: A yearly prostate-specific antigen (PSA) test. A yearly stool test (for colon and rectal cancer). A sigmoidoscopy (for colon cancer) every three to five years.

Most men in their 20's think nothing can hurt them, that "invincible" syndrome. In their 30's they tend to be too busy with family and jobs to pay attention to their own health. By this time they hit their 40's, they don't go to the doctor because they are afraid to find out and don't want to know. They learn very little about their own bodies and about how to do routine preventive checks that could prolong their lives.

So the next questions is, What should men do? They should not smoke. It is the single greatest preventable cause of disease and death among men (and women). They should find a straight-talking doctor and get off their fannies and get a physical examination. If there is something that needs attention, it will only get more serious, more painful and more expensive if they wait or put off treatment. They should ask their doctor to show them how to do simple, regular self-examinations for skin and testicular cancer. Testicular cancer most often strikes between the age of 15 and 40, but it can occur at any age, and the incidence rises again after age 70. So boys should start TSE (testicular self-examination) around age 13 and make it a life-long practice.

So you guys out there, (and you know who you are), don't ignore the "dashboard warning light" on your "car" and call your doctor right away for that much-needed "tune-up." After all, the ladies would like to keep you around as long as possible!

Till next time, stay informed and stay healthy.

Slow and steady investment can really add up. Investing only a few dollars each month can be profitable.

Weather forecasters record tornado activity for future study

By Mike Lyons

Steve Hodanish was less than 200 yards from one of the scariest things in the world. Mr. Hodanish was two football fields away from a tornado.

He was there for a reason. He was there because he wanted to be. Mr. Hodanish is a storm chaser and on this early May day in the plains of Kansas he had caught a tornado.

How did he feel? "Ecstatic! Exciting," Mr. Hodanish told me. "It's one of the most exciting things I have ever done."

Normally, Mr. Hodanish's work is pretty routine. He's a weather forecaster for the National Weather Service at the Melbourne office. His job is to try to figure out if it's going to rain tomorrow.

Yet, for weeks in late April and early May, Mr. Hodanish joined a virtual armada of researchers chasing tornadoes in America's heartland. Mr. Hodanish was part of Project VORTEX, which stands for Verification of the Origins of Rotation in Tornadoes Experiment.

"Basically, we're trying to figure out why some thunderstorms produce tornadoes and why some don't," Mr. Hodanish said. Essentially, they were looking for the twist in the twister.

In this case, "they" turned out to be quite a few people. Any thunderstorm that was likely to produce a tornado was surrounded by 50 to 60 researchers in 15 cars and two airplanes.

"We would launch weather balloons in and around the storm," Mr. Hodanish said. "Then, we would measure wind speeds, air temperature and air pressures around the thunderstorm." In addition, the researchers had mobile Doppler radars to track the tornado. All the information was recorded for later study.

All this work was done just a few hundred yards from a tornado. Mr. Hodanish and the other researchers were often face to face with this powerful storm. At times it got a little dangerous. "A huge storm in Kansas destroyed two of our vehicles with hail stones the size of baseballs, Mr. Hodanish told me. No one was seriously injured in the incident."

At other times, Mr. Hodanish and the researchers were so busy with their machines and instruments they ever had a chance to even look at the tornado. "It's frustrating," Mr. Hodanish admitted. "I wanted to look at the tornado but I had to do my work. We're there, after all, for science." During his three weeks on the project Mr. Hodanish was able to see half a dozen tornadoes.

Mr. Hodanish said the goal of Project VORTEX is to figure out why some thunderstorms produce a tornado while air rising into a similar storm does not. "If we can find out how tornadoes form, we can put out warnings faster and that can save lives," Mr. Hodanish said.

The collection of data from the plains of the Midwest will continue for a few more weeks, but analysis of Project VORTEX will continue for several years. Mr. Hodanish's participation in the project is over, which means he'll be back in Melbourne trying to figure out if it's going to rain tomorrow. His heart, however, remains in the Midwest. "I'd rather be somewhere in Kansas or Oklahoma, two hundred yards from a tornado," Mr. Hodanish said.

Mike Lyons is the weatherman for WPBF, Channel 25.

PORTRAIT OF AN ENVIROSHOPPER

"I buy items with little or no packaging."

Word has it that you're an Enviroshopper. Is it true?

Definitely. Everything you've heard is true. My friends call me the "smart shopper" because I analyze everything I buy. I make sure everything that goes into my cart is environmentally friendly.

So, what kinds of products do you buy and what do you avoid?

When I go to the grocery store, I look for items that don't have a lot of excess packaging. Some products are double packaged and their packaging is not recyclable. There are lots of products that don't have any packaging at all.

Like what?

Like loose fruit and vegetables. I just put them right in my cart. I don't see why I should use a plastic produce bag.

Any words of advice to the shoppers out there?

Take a second look at everything you buy. When you buy products with little or no packaging, you are sending a powerful message that waste prevention is important to you. And don't forget to bring along your canvas bag. Every one of us can make a difference.

Cong. Hastings to speak at GCCHS graduation

Congressman Alcee Hastings

Sharika Brown, valedictorian, will deliver the farewell address.

Highlighting the ending of an era, and celebrating the fact that the class of 1995 is to be the last class to graduate from the old facility, will be an address by the Honorable Congressman Alcee L. Hastings. Cong. Hastings is a second-term congressman, representing Florida's newly-formed District 23, which spans the seven counties of Dade, Broward, Palm Beach, Hendry, Martin, St. Lucie, and Okeechobee in South Florida.

Born in Altamonte Springs, Cong. Hastings attended Crooms Academy and later graduated from Fisk University with a Bachelor of Arts degree. He attended Howard University School of Law and received his Juris Doctor degree from Florida A & M University, Tallahassee.

During the 103rd Congress, Cong. Hastings introduced legislation to protect Fort Everglades. He also supported legislation on the national front. In his first term, he worked to ensure the restoration of funds cut from the Medicare program, because he said the cuts would be harmful to the senior citizens in his district.

Cong. Hastings also worked to secure funds for the repair and improvement of State Road 7 and Highway 27, as well as installation of a median barrier on I-95 in Palm Beach County.

The public is invited to share this event, which Principal Dr. Effie Grear says is a history-making event for the students and faculty.

Dr. Grear said family and friends of graduates who have been given passes will be admitted to the gymnasium by the ramp entrance from 6:30 to 7 p.m.

The front doors to the gym will be opened at 7 p.m. and any overflow of guests unable to enter at that time will be able to view the exercises via cable television in the cafeteria located by the gym.

QO Chemicals

Peggy Highsmith, assistant district director for DEP in West Palm Beach, said a class I well is the most stringent classification because it is injection of industrial waste.

Ms. Laramore told the panel that the plant has a 29-year history of injecting very acidic and toxic wastewater and ignitable gases. She said her organization is concerned about the possibility of upward flow movement of the waste.

"We're not talking about toxic waste," Mr. Royster said. "The only potential danger was the acidic character of the material which could harm the well system's integrity. To date, the well has been inspected and no leaks have been found. To prevent future problems, the material has been neutralized to raise the pH which will further assure the integrity of the operations."

Last year, QO Chemicals reduced the acidity of the wastewater to 5.5 percent and is currently operating the plant under a five year consent agreement with the EPA. If they meet all the requirement of FDEP and EPA the plant will be given the licensing to continue the deep well injection.

Ms. Laramore said she is concerned because QO officials have also asked for an aquifer exemption which would permit them to use a monitor well which is over 800 feet from the injection well site. Most monitoring wells are required to be within 150 feet of the well they are monitoring.

QO presently monitors its injection operation by means of two permitted monitoring wells. FDEP is reviewing the efficiency of the monitoring program as part of the consent order.

Old wells, which were operated by the former company, Quaker Oats, have been cemented over their entire length and permanently capped and pose no significant threat to human health, the environment, or drinking water sources, says Mr. Royster. "Furthermore, an attempt to remove the material from the subsurface is not feasible and could even be dangerous," he adds.

Ms. Highsmith said some deep wells have been functioning for over 20 years in the county with no degradation of the pipe system and that QO's deep well is built stronger than many. "We wouldn't call it (the effluent) harmless, but we don't consider it harmful," she told the audience.

Mayor Steve Weeks, after listening to the entire presentation, said he feels assured that QO Chemicals poses no threat to the community.

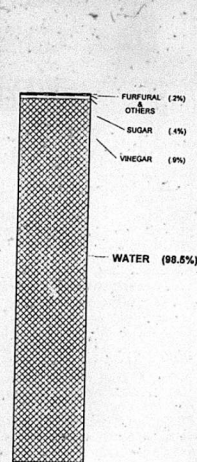

"QO Chemicals has been an important part of this community for 30 years and I hope they continue for another 30 years or longer," he said.

QO, which is a subsidiary of Great Lakes Specialty Chemicals, employs 62 full-time people and pays an average hourly wage of $15.

Riding around in city vehicles

As a taxpayer in the City of Belle Glade I would like to know from the city commissioners, or whoever is in charge, why the City of Belle Glade has to furnish the city employees a vehicle to ride their kids to schools? And what if an accident occurs? Who'd be responsible for that?

Lomax Harrelle, city manager for the City of Belle Glade responds: "The City of Belle Glade has key personnel who are on 24-hour call, seven days a week. In order to facilitate the best possible service to citizens and to professionally handle any emergency, these personnel must have 24-hour access to specialized equipment and specialized communications.

Although the city strives to limit liability, it is probable that an employee may handle a family responsibility during the time that he is on 24-hour call."

Thank you American Legion

"I'm calling to thank the members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion, Post 20, and also the American Legion, Post 20 for sending over their leftover chicken dinners to Glades General Hospital staff on Sunday after their Memorial Day Barbecue.

Some of us had worked 12-hour shifts that day. We were all tired and had been busy in the emergency room. We really appreciated what the American Legion did for us.

I want to let the American Legion know that the veterans have not been forgotten. All of us, old and young, want to thank the American Legion, the veterans organizations and each and every veteran for the contribution they made to help us maintain our freedom.

Again, thanks to the veterans and thanks to the American Legion for the great chicken.

Let's all respond

"By happen chance I read a 'Grins and Gripses' article published in the Wellington/Royal Palm Forum on May 31, page 13. The column is similar to Speak Out.

Here's the message, verbatim: 'I'm from Wellington and I think it's about time that Palm Beach County cut out Belle Glade, Pahokee and all the Western communities out there from the county. They need their own county because they're bleeding us dry. They take all of our money, tax dollars, and we get very little in return.'

I was furious and I responded. I hope others will too.

Grins and Gripses hotline number is 791-7654. Thank you."

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor:

I would just like to say thank you to our city manager, Lomax Harrelle, and to Ken Robinson. I contacted Mr. Harrelle with a problem that I am having with my property and he took care of it in a very timely manner with the help of Mr. Robinson. Mr. Robinson came to my house on his own time two nights in a row. The first time he came was to find out what the problem was and what my concerns were and then he returned the next night with the answers to my questions and possible solutions.

It is nice to see that we have public officials who live in the city and really care about the city. Thanks!

Sincerely
Sherrie Dulany

Red Cross urges preparedness this summer

By Melissa Sullivan
Public Relations

In an effort to save lives this summer, the American Red Cross strongly urges the public to learn precautions in and around the water and what to do in case of emergencies.

This effort is sparked by the National Safety Council's 1994 Accident Facts report which shows drowning as the second leading cause of death for youth aged one to 24 and the seventh leading cause for adults over 24.

"Many deaths could be prevented if people used caution in and around the water and knew proper rescue techniques for drowning victims," said Susan Clarke, director of Health and Safety Services for the Palm Beach County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

American Red Cross' 12 Water Safety Tips highlight the need to know your swimming limits, how to avoid back and neck injury when diving in water, and signs to look for indicating an emergency.

Drowning can occur in home or community pools, oceans, lakes, water parks, or even bathtubs or large buckets. "People need to know the dangers involved and know how to take action in an emergency, because when an emergency situation arises, help can't wait," Mr. Clarke said. "Help Can't Wait" is the Red Cross' new slogan which embodies all that the Red Cross does - from helping millions of Americans prevent tragedies through its various training courses to providing immediate relief to those in serious need, every day of the year, in communities across the nation.

The American Red Cross has provided health and safety services to people across the nation for more than 80 years as part of the organization's mission of emergency prevention and preparedness.

In developing training programs, the Red Cross relies on the consensus of American medical opinion represented by the American Heart Association's Emergency Cardiac Care Committee, the American Academy of Pediatrics, the National Academy of Science Institute of Medicine and other widely-noted experts in the field to define rescue techniques.

To learn more about how to take precautions this summer to help those in emergency situations when "Help Can't Wait," contact the Palm Beach County Chapter of the American Red Cross at 407-333-7711.

American Red Cross Water Safety Tips

- Never swim alone. Try to swim in supervised areas only.
- Know your swimming limits and stay within them. Don't try to keep up with a stronger, skilled swimmer or encourage others to keep up with you. Keep an eye on weaker swimmers - if they appear tired, encourage them to rest on land.
- Never drink alcohol and swim.
- Obey "No Diving" signs, which always indicate the area is unsafe for head first entries. A general rule is to enter feet first into water rather than head first if you do not know the depth. In addition, learn the correct way to dive from a qualified instructor.
- Watch out for the "dangerous toes" - too tired, too cold, too far from safety, too much sun, too much strenuous activity.
- Stay out of the water when over heated.
- Do not chew gum or eat while you swim; you could easily choke.
- Use common sense about swimming after eating. In general, you do not have to wait an hour after eating before you may safely swim. However, if you do have a large meal, it is wise to let digestion get started before doing strenuous activity such as swimming.
- Use Coast Guard-approved life jackets when boating and fishing.
- Know your local weather conditions and prepare for electrical storms. Because water conducts electricity, it is wise to stop swimming or boating as soon as you see or hear a storm.
- If you come upon a person in an emergency, remember "Check - Call - Care": Check the scene to ensure it's safe and check the victim; Call 9-1-1 or your local emergency number, and Care for the person until help arrives.
- In the event of a drowning:
 - Remove the person from the water;
 - Check consciousness and breathing;
 - If not breathing, open up the airway and attempt rescue breathing;
 - If air does not go in, give abdominal thrusts (Heimlich maneuver) for children and adults to clear the airway.
 - Once the airway is clear, provide rescue breathing and CPR as needed.

Stacy takes new position at cooperative, two others given promotions in company

The man who helped successfully lead Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative through the conversion to mechanical harvesting has requested to step aside after 26 years of service to the company.

Dale Stacy will resign from his position as vice president of agriculture effective Oct. 31, but has agreed to stay on as the agriculture services advisor to provide advice on agricultural matters to the cooperative's grower-members.

Phyllis Pursell has been promoted to agriculture division manager and will be responsible for heading up the entire division. She has been with the cooperative for 22 years overseeing the planning and administration aspects of the department.

Ed Mayo has been promoted to agriculture operations manager and will oversee the sugarcane harvesting, transportation, and equipment maintenance areas of the agriculture division. Mr. Mayo has been with the cooperative for 24 years and most recently served as the superintendent of equipment maintenance and repair.

Mr. Stacy joined the cooperative in its infancy in 1963, working in the agricultural department. He left the cooperative from 1967 to 1973 to gain experience in other agricultural areas. He rejoined the cooperative in 1973 and progressed to the position of assistant agriculture division manager in charge of mechanical harvesting before leading the agriculture division.

Looking back at his career at the cooperative, Mr. Stacy said, "I feel the most pride in seeing the total transition to mechanical harvesting. Back in the early years we had the responsibility to see that it worked despite the major challenges. Because of the methodical approach to implementing mechanical harvesting, I feel our final transition was made much smoother."

Mr. Stacy said his decision to change roles was made with some mixed emotions. He said his commitment to his career left little time for his family and hobbies, but the people at the cooperative have been like family and will be dearly missed.

With his new position, he said he has the best of both worlds; more time for his family and hobbies and the opportunity to continue his association with the cooperative.

Ms. Pursell said she has enjoyed her tenure at the cooperative and looks forward to the challenge of running the agriculture department. "With the combined expertise of the field personnel, we will continue to provide quality services for our members."

In talking about his promotion, Mr. Mayo said, "It's a privilege and a challenge to have the opportunity to be the new ag operations manager. I look forward to the challenge of keeping the cooperative's agricultural operations the "best" in the business."

"Mr. Stacy has been an integral part of the cooperative's management team," said George H. Wedgworth, Cooperative president. "We're glad that he has agreed to stay on in an advisory capacity to work with our grower-members. We have complete confidence in these changes and believe they will allow for a successful and smooth transition."

Job fair held at Rosenwald Elementary

This past weekend was an unusual one in South Bay. The halls of Rosenwald are generally quiet, recuperating from the week's activities, resting up Friday afternoon to Sunday for Mondays again. Friday evening found the cafeteria busy with volunteers in training for "The Fair" on Saturday. Saturday morning came and the school was alive with the hundreds of area citizens who turned out. They came to apply for jobs at Wackenhut, the correctional facility planned for South Bay.

Area citizens were given preference to apply for positions from the construction of to the administration of the facility.

The chance was given to pre-qualifying for homes in the proposed sub-division Bay Village. Vendors had the opportunity to promote their services with Wackenhut.

WSWN radio, Channel 12, and media reporters were on hand.

Men on the Serious Side provided hot dogs and drinks. City Manager Lester Baird, Vice Mayor Basil Anderson, and Commissioners Michael Jackson and Milandra Smith were in attendance along with Palte Homes, Consortium Banks, Wackenhut, PIC, Minority Business developers, and West Tech.

What a great day for South Bay.

The LEAP project that is piloting in the first grade presented the Olsejemi African Dance Troupe on Tuesday, May 30, under the school's pavilion. The group of five dancers and five drummers took the students back to the Motherhood with their rhythms. Afterwards, the group presented a hands-on workshop in the classroom. The focus of the workshop was on the types and construction of the drums used, also the communication uses of the drums. The costumes worn in Africa by the women and the men were discussed, and the art of wrapping the cloth was demonstrated using the students in attendance.

The students also had the opportunity to beat rhythms on the drums and learn a dance routine.

The Olsejemi group had members from ranging from various age groups. One of the members had been with the troupe about 20 years. The focus of the dance was learning about one's personal space and utilizing it. The Olsejemi Troupe has traveled to Africa several times where they study the various tribal dances for performances. The group directors admonished the students to create their personal space and allow only positive things to occur within its spaces.

Three of Rosenwald's finest participated in the Palm Beach County Unified Youth Sports Festival and came to school weighted down from the medals in pins they won. Jeremy West competed in wrestling and basketball, in which he received gold medals, and a silver gymnastics medal. He also got a bronze medal in wrestling. The pins he received were for skating and Olympics. Alkevious Davis won a gold basketball, silver gymnastics, and a bronze in wrestling. Artavious West, a kindergartner, won two gold medals and a silver. The gold was for gymnastics, and the silver for wrestling.

Students in the HIPPY program will observe graduation on June 15 at 7 p.m. at Rosenwald Elementary. Contact Lori Moore at 996-4970 for further details.

The members of the fifth grade class visited Lake Shore Middle School for an orientation program. The students were given pamphlets that contained information on the school's class schedule, dress code, accomplishments, special events and programs offered. Throughout the program, the students were treated with selections by the school's chorus, band, and cheerleading squad. Greetings by the Student Council president, creed by the sixth grade students, and the welcome was presented by the school's principal, Richard Ramsey. Activities, dress code, academics, and challenges were outlined by various staff members. The finale of the trip was a mini-tour of the sixth grade campus.

Follow general rules and become boating safe

Summer time and boating go together in south Florida, but the Florida Game & Fresh Water Fish Commission reminds the public to be "boat smart" so they won't become accident statistics.

LA Jim Huffstodt, GFC public information coordinator in the Everglades Region, reminds boaters to follow the 10 commandments of boating safety:

1. Familiarize yourself with the way your boat handles.

Know the stopping distance, turning radius, and the most efficient cruise speed.

2. Avoid taking risks that could endanger life, limb or property.

3. Know your position in relation to other boats, and know where you're going.

4. Keep an eye out for changing weather conditions, and be prepared if conditions become hazardous.

5. Know and practice the boating rules of the road.

6. Stop and render assistance to other boaters in distress.

7. Exercise courtesy and common sense.

8. Keep an eye on your fuel level to avoid being stranded.

9. Before towing your boat on the road, make sure the trailer is securely hitched. Check the brakes, brake lights, and directional signals.

10. Leave sufficient room between your vehicle and the ahead.

Parrish receives Black Caucus Scholarship

U.S. Congressman Alcee Hastings recently announced the awarding of eight scholarships to college and high school students from the 23rd District which he represents.

The Congressional Black Caucus (CBC) Spouses Scholarship Fund Program, in conjunction with the CBC Foundation, annually donates tuition assistance monies to deserving minority students, either currently enrolled or planning to enroll in an accredited college or university in the U.S. The program began in 1988, in response to federal and state reductions in funding for higher education opportunities.

The CBC awards scholarships in Congressional districts represented by a member of the CBC. A local selection committee, comprised of citizens from the fields of education, public policy, social work, business, and other professions, reviews the applications and interviews candidates.

Sixty-seven students from the district applied for the eight available scholarships. This year's recipient from the Glades area is Anthony Parrish, a senior at Glades Central Community High School.

"These scholarships make it a little easier for minority students, particularly African-Americans, to continue pursuit of academic excellence," said Cong. Hastings. "Without these scholarships, many of these students who would not be able to gain the skill necessary to compete with their contemporaries in an advanced, technological society," said Cong. Hastings.

GFC warns to stay alert because alligators wander

Alligators are mating and beginning to nest at this time of the year, and some of them are showing up in the most unlikely places.

"Every mating season our nuisance alligator calls increase as people notice reptiles in places they normally don't go, including backyard swimming pools," said Lt. Jim Huffstodt, spokesman for the Florida Game & Fresh Water Fish Commission (GFC).

Lt. Huffstodt said alligators aren't as dangerous to humans as many might think. "Too many of us have this impression that alligators are out there stalking people. That's the distorted image they've seen in movies over the years," he said.

"We are, however, dealing with a predatory animal that can be quite large and potentially dangerous in certain rare situations," he said. "The problem gators are the focus of our Nuisance Alligator Program."

The Nuisance Alligator Program consists of a corps of civilian trappers working under contract to the GFC. Thousands of potentially dangerous alligators are trapped every year as part of the program.

"This is a particularly busy time of the year down here in south Florida," Lt. Huffstodt said. "Our Everglades Regional Headquarters in West Palm Beach gets 20-25 nuisance gator calls per day."

People who find themselves around alligators should follow the following guidelines:

- Don't kill, harass, molest or attempt to move alligators. Call the GFC if you see a dangerous situation evolving.
- Do call the GFC if you see a large, aggressive alligator in a populated area.

- Don't swim in waters which might conceal a large alligator. Never swim at night in waters where there are alligators.

- Don't feed alligators. It's against state law and carries a fine of up to $500. Many gators who are fed frequently lose their fear of humans.

- Don't throw fish scraps in the water or leave them on the shore where they will attract gators.

- Don't allow pet dogs to swim in waters containing alligators.

Canal Point Hardware Store closing after 70 years of business

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter

The original old-fashioned cash register and the unique fixtures in the Canal Point Hardware will become memories for the many residents of Canal Point in July. The landmark that people often look for when traveling to the Glades and using directions which they have written down will be torn down and July 10 is the day of closing for the town's only hardware store.

The land which the hardware store sits, and tracts of land surrounding it, have been sold to a contractor in Daytona who intends to build the new Canal Point United States Post Office. People in the Glades, and more importantly people in the Canal Point community, are going to miss the little hardware store that sold everything the mind could imagine and served as a meeting place in the community.

Now owned by Anita Brunson, Canal Point Hardware has been in the community for 70 years. First owned by Clinton Coburn and named the "Clinton Coburn Company, the hardware store became a part of history in the area in 1925. The store was located on the corner of First St. and U.S. Highway 98. It was a two-story building which housed the hardware store downstairs. Mr. Coburn and his wife, Alberta, lived upstairs. The building has since been torn down.

The store relocated on the corner of Everglades Ave. and Hwy. 98, and in the 1940s, Harlan and Angela Sears purchased the business and changed the name to Sears Hardware. The store moved to its present location on Main St. in Canal Point.

However, in 1975 Dr. E.J. Graham bought the hardware business and changed the name to Canal Point Hardware. Dr. Graham's step-daughter, Linda, and her husband, Jack Keese, operated the business until 1977.

The business was once again sold to former NASA engineer Harrison Brunson. Mr. Brunson died of a heart attack in 1990 but his wife saw fit to continue the family business which many people today view as a place in the community that holds many memories of "hometown".

Mrs. Brunson openly talks about the day that her husband told her about the Canal Point investment. She recalls asking him, "Where am I going to get my hair done?" She never dreamed of leaving her four-bedroom home with a swimming pool in Titusville. She never imagined packing up and moving away from the neighbors whom she had met and became such close friends with. In short, she didn't think she could survive in a town that didn't have a Publix.

In an effort to experience a different kind of life in a different setting, Mrs. Brunson opted to relocate her family to Canal Point, and now she said she "loves" the community. She has become somewhat of a community leader, and she has opened the doors of the hardware store for small community-wide meetings.

Concerning her decision to sale her portion of the land to the contractor that will build on the property, a teary-eyed Mrs. Brunson said, "This is not an easy thing for me to do." She said she is unsure of what she will do next, however she did say she will remain active in the community. "I have no set plans on what I will do, but I will continue to support our farmers," she said.

Assisting her mother in bringing closure to the chapter of Hardware Store Owner, Mrs. Brunson's daughter Tiffany came to town recently. She said she is in town to help her mother to both complete the 50 percent sale of the stock in the store, and to help her remain emotionally strong. Tiffany, who frequently travels from her Titusville home to visit her mother, said she is aware that the business was a love of her father's and she is proud that her mother is continuing what her father had begun. However, she does admit that she is genuinely concerned about her mother being that she is the only family member left in Canal Point (Mrs. Brunson's children have each moved out of town). "This has been a tremendous responsibility for my mother," said Tiffany Pizzi.

Mrs. Pizzi said being that she spent her high school years in Canal Point, and she too has worked at the family hardware store, she hates to say good-bye to the business. "It's sad and I'm going to miss seeing the people. This was part of my life too. I remember more about this place than I do anything else," she said.

Though Canal Point Hardware is closing its doors, Mrs. Brunson said she will donate some of the store's inventory to area museums in hopes of keeping the store's history alive. She said she has donated fixtures, shelves, and cases to different organizations, and she will also donate part of the store's history to the Canal Point Museum which has not yet been designated. The Zora Neale Hurston Roof Garden Museum in Belle Glade, and The Blink Glisson Historical Museum in Loxahatchee which will be located in Yesterdays Village at the South Florida Fairgrounds. Mrs. Brunson said she also plans to donate to the Pahokee Museum.

Right now, Mrs. Brunson must concentrate on one important thing: completing the storewide sale. Once the doors of the hardware store are closed, Mrs. Brunson said she is not sure exactly when the contractor will begin the demolition, land clearing, etc. After the sale is complete and the doors are closed, and the new post office is built, Mrs. Brunson said she will have another thing to deal with being that she uses the post office on a regular basis. "When the post office is built, it will be yet another adjustment for me," she said while trying to hold back the tears.

Anita Brunson and her daughter, Tiffany, ponder over items in the store's showcase.

Jimmy Boyle claimed innocence to the charge of inaccurate judging. "We all know that Alicia bakes some of the best apple pies in the county. But this Linda Mae Smith she bakes a pretty darn good pie, too, and she's one heck of a fine woman, if you know what I mean."
Other winners of the Bake Off included in the Chili category, Tex Charles of Dade City for his 13-Alarm Firestarter Chili; in the Homemade TV Dinner category, Eddie Pupa of Clewiston for his Zapadapa-Burgers; in the Meatloaf category, Wilhelm "Loco Hombre" Garcia of Belle Glade for his Willie's Meatloaf Supreme; and in the Canned Goods category, Trisha Wendall of Pahokee, for her Canned Mangoes and Ham.

A special Lifetime Achievement Award was given to Albert Vermil, for his continuing efforts to promote Florida beef steaks both as a hearty meal and as a cold compress for ailments ranging from black eyes to mosquito bites. In getting the award, Vermil praised the Executive Committee of the Council and talked at his newest efforts with a large chain to market steaks.
